70 DEAD IN FIRE STARTED DURING COMMENCEMENT

Oil Lamp Overturns on Stage in South Carolina Hall and 300 in Audience Make Rush for Single Exit by Way of Staircase Which Collapses; Building Consumed Within an Hour; Whole County Affected by Tragedy.

FIRE ENVELOPES STRUGGLING MASS OF HUMANITY

By Associated Press

CAMDEN, S. C., May 18—Tragedy stalking in the wake of comedy today had turned Kershaw county into a county of mourning.

As the aftermath of a commencement play at the Cleveland school, eight miles from here, more than 70 persons, including whole families, are dead and many are injured.

As the play reached its climax an oil lamp on the stage overturned and exploded. In an instant the stage was a mass of flames.

Panic seized the audience of 300 parents, brothers, sisters and relatives of the graduating class come to honor the youngsters, that had crowded the auditorium.

There was a concerted rush for the single exit that led to a narrow wooden stairway. The weight of the mass was too much for the steps and they collapsed hurling scores in a tangled mass, a number being crushed to death.

In a breath it seemed to persons who escaped the entire building was wrapped in flames and within an hour the building was little more than a heap of smouldering ashes the funeral pyre of more than three and a half score of Kershaw county citizens.

Nearly every home in the county was affected by the disaster. Many Camden people had gone to witness the playlet and some of them are numbered among the victims. Five injured are in the hospital here but all are too badly hurt to talk about it.

The Cleveland school is located in the center of a fertile section but sparsely populated. The road leading to the scene is little more than a one-way path along the edge of a plowed field. This morning hundreds of automobiles and buggies were passing to and fro, marking the route to the scene of the tragedy.

In the panic which followed the explosion little effort was made to fight the flames which quickly communicated to the dry timbers. Mothers with children in their arms were trampled under foot. Young and old fought for exit.

When the stairway collapsed many were impaled on the ragged timbers and others were pinned down by the weight of bodies above them. Those who had made their way out of the building turned at once to aid the victims but they found little opportunity to do so, the only exit except windows being cut off.

Seeing the hopelessness of their position a number of persons jumped from the windows suffering broken bones and other injuries. Several mothers hurled their children into eager arms below. Forty children, men and 15 women including a negro nurse, were burned to death and two young white men are missing. In some cases because all members of families lost their lives bodies remain unclaimed.

Funeral services for the victims will be held this afternoon near the ruins of the building where they met their death. There was little mention of an inquest. Coroner C. I. [illegible] is among those listed as dead. Although the fire and panic occurred soon after 9 o'clock last night news of the disaster did not reach the outside world until many hours later.

The entire available population joined itself in the work of rescue. Witnesses said a number of men lost their lives in efforts to save others. In some instances they won their way to safety but on learning the desperate situation inside the building they returned in an effort to rescue women and children.

Identification of bodies was a difficult task and in numerous cases only by bits of clothing could identity be established.

VETERANS VISIT TROTTER SCHOOLS; CITY NEXT WEEK

Commander W. P. Clark, Colonel James J. Barnhart, W. H. Shaw, Captain Edmund Dunn and Lyman S. Strickler of William F. Kurtz Post No. 104, Grand Army of the Republic concluded their visits to the Dunbar township schools yesterday when they spent the greater part of the day at Trotter schools addressing the pupils on Memorial Day and patriotism and telling war stories. The students were extended an invitation to participate in the [illegible] on Wednesday, May 30. The [illegible] were met at the car by Principal Harry C. Witt who escorted them to the school building where the two higher grades had assembled in the principal's room to listen to the most interesting talks of the veterans. The morning was devoted to addressing the body of students in this room and at 12 o'clock buffet luncheon consisting of sandwiches, potato salad, hot coffee, ice cream and cake was served by the teachers.

The afternoon was devoted to visiting other rooms and addressing the students there. American flags, pictures of Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt and Lincoln's address at Gettysburg adorned the walls of the various rooms. Shortly after 3 o'clock all of the students assembled on the school grounds and entertained the comrades with gymnastic exercises. Before leaving, the veterans were extended an invitation by Principal Witt and teachers to return next year.

The Trotter school has an enrollment of 143 and had an attendance of 96 per cent during the month of April. There were several schools in the township which the comrades were unable to visit.

The committee expects to visit the Connellsville schools some time next week.

In compliance with orders issued by the commander of the G. A. R. of Pennsylvania Commander Clark will make out individual reports of all the schools visited, filling out questionnaires which ask how many school houses have flags, how many are provided with flags by the G. A. R., whether the flag drills are taught in the schools, salute of the flag and facsimile of Lincoln's address at Gettysburg is found hanging in the school. There are many other questions to be answered. This will be mailed to the patriotic instructor, Campbell D. Stanton of the Grand Army of the Republic, who has charge of outlining the work.

Teachers are Misses Maude Rohlf, Margaret Duffy, Margaret Doyle, Anna Cassidy, Rose Hoey, M. Roba Forc, Mae Burkholder and Rene Crosol and Harry G. Witt, principal.

For the first time since she has been under arrest here or so far as known since she escaped from the Los Angeles County Jail last December she has laid aside the assumed veil of pretension to being other than the long sought escaped prisoner.

Not only has she admitted her identity but her spirit of bravado and determination to outwit the law officers of Los Angeles and the California and Washington authorities has well begun to subside.

BALL SEASON TO GET UNDER WAY HERE TOMORROW

Fayette Field Rolled and Scraped; Grandstand Is Washed Out.

SMITHTON WILL PLAY

"Stony" Jones' Aggregation Will Likely Be Hard Proposition for Unacquainted Coker Organization But Locals Look Like Strong Nine

Fayette Field is all ready and baseball fans are all set for the opening of the season of the Connellsville Independents tomorrow afternoon. The Smithton Independents will be the first antagonists of the Cokers and while only representing a small community the visitors have already proven their ability by defeating other teams which might be expected to be classed higher. The game will be called at 3:30 o'clock.

The season was to have opened last Saturday but because of the appearance of the John Robinson circus at that time a postponement was made. The delay in getting the season under way has only served to sharpen the appetites of the fans for some snappy baseball and hot red-blooded men and women will be out tomorrow to get a glimpse at once with the new faces on the Coker aggregation.

Connellsville has a picture que team this season made up of hard hitting and fast fielding players. It looks like the biggest baseball year the city has seen for many, many seasons. The tentative batting order for tomorrow submitted this morning follows:

Korb ss, McKinley 3b, Patterson 2b, Corbett c, Yanchus rf, Bloom 1b, Bretch cf, Fisher lf, Kozar p.

Preston will be in reserve as a pitcher and two utility men who will always be in uniform will be Chip Francis who has been identified with every baseball team representing Connellsville in the last 20 years and Pop Francis who is just breaking into diamond circles.

"I think we will have a better, faster team than last year," said J. F. Thompson, manager, today. There will be no parade preceding the contest as the players will be taken to the field early but the Connellsville Military Band will be out. Mayor C. C. Mitchell will pitch the first ball and another prominent man will receive. The mayor said this morning he believed a good club was an asset and advertisement for any community and thought it the duty of every good citizen to support such a team.

The club is starting the season with less money than usual. No canvass for funds was made but a few of the loyal supporters sent in their checks anyway. Good weather and healthy crowds on Memorial Day will be necessary to get the team in the clear.

Members of the Coker squad will report at Mr. Thompson's office between 12 and 1 o'clock to receive uniforms. The players will be on the field at 2 o'clock at which hour the gates will be opened. The firemen were at the park today using the big hose on the grandstand to wash off the winter accumulation of dirt. Heavy wire cables have supplanted the lighter ones along the first and third base lines.

Andy Kozar will be back on the mound for Connellsville and he will be opposed by either Ans Frazier or Gaby Lloyd who was in Kentucky with the Appalachian League last year.

The Smithton team is somewhat in the class of the Yough Valley Independents which played at Dawson two years ago. The players are high class athletes secured by the payment of good money by "Stony" Jones who has virtually made the entire baseball movement in Smithton possible. A crowd of Smithton fans will be here for the opener.

SOLICITORS GIVEN 30 DAYS TO JAIL

Two men arrested last night on charges of being suspicious characters were given 30 days to jail by Mayor C. C. Mitchell in police court this morning. They gave their names as Matthew Doyle and Charles Cooles of New York.

The men were discovered to be defrauding local citizens out of money on the pretext that they were soliciting subscriptions for magazines. The money was kept by the pair and not turned into the magazine organization. Just how many persons have suffered through their operations is not known. Their activities will be reported to the company handling the magazine sales.

PRELIMINARY WORK BIG POWER PROJECT TO BEGIN AT ONCE

Research and Survey Work to Be Done by West Penn Engineers.

SECOND DAM TO BE BUILT

Below Mouth of Big Sandy Creek and First Near Cheat Haven to be Completed as Generating Stations, Nine Others to be Impounding Reservoirs

No time is to be lost by the West Virginia Power & Transportation Company, subsidiary of the West Penn Power Company in availing itself of the privilege granted by the Federal Power Commission to complete the hydro-electric power development in Cheat river.

Preliminary research and survey particularly as relates to the site of the second dam below the mouth of Big Sandy creek will be taken up at once by a staff of engineers under the direction of R. M. Riegel, hydraulic engineer of the West Penn Power Company.

The permit just granted covers that part of the Cheat river from the mouth of Big Sandy Creek 15 miles from Point Marion upstream on the Cheat river and includes Big Sandy creek to the vicinity of Elliot Mill in Wharton township. The permit for the territory in the Cheat valley from Cheat Haven to the mouth of Big Sandy creek was granted about 11 years ago when the project was first undertaken.

Soon thereafter the company began construction of the first dam of the project. This is located about one half mile above Cheat Haven and was almost 50 per cent completed when the financial difficulties of the Kuhns then in control of the West Penn compelled abandonment of the enterprise.

The present plans contemplate the completion of the first dam and the construction of a second a short distance below the mouth of Big Sandy creek. Above that point and for miles below the watershed is an almost unbroken series of wooded slopes. Details of the second dam will be worked out in the surveys and preliminary investigation work now to be started.

Generating stations equipped with turbo-generators will be constructed at each of the two dams. The nine smaller dams further up the river and along Big Sandy and other tributary streams are to be reservoirs to impound the water for use in the dry seasons. The entire system of dams 11 in all will form a method of flood gates and spillways. A cloudburst in the watershed mountains for instance will first fill the dams when these are below spillway level and the additional volume of water can then be fed out into the Cheat and the Monongahela at Point Marion under control or at least partial control of the flood gates.

Bandits Send "Ultimatum" Decreeing Death Tuesday Of All Foreign Prisoners

Will Be Shot Unless Troops Are Removed From Vicinity, Edict.

ACTION DEMANDED BY U. S.

By Associated Press

SHANGHAI, May 18—American and British captives of the Shantung bandits will be shot Tuesday if the Chinese troops are not withdrawn, according to the final ultimatum of the bandits brought from the mountain stronghold today by Marcel Olivier Perube, a Frenchman, one of the prisoners who was released for the purpose.

Chinese bandits last night attacked Jawenkow, a town 30 miles north of Lincheng and seized a number of captives according to a report received here.

SHANGHAI, May 18—Another letter from Rev. William Lenfers, the aged German priest of Lincheng was delivered to the Associated Press here today and describes his second trip into the stronghold of the Shantung bandits. For the second time within a few days he interviewed the bandit chief in but did not succeed in obtaining the liberation of any of the foreign captives.

Father Lenfers was accompanied by Dr. H. Mertens and Father Buis, a Dutch missionary.

The bandits were distant and suspicious and told me they were being cheated and I was being deceived because they declared the troops had been withdrawn from only one mountain after I had promised that all would be withdrawn, he wrote.

It was refused to permit me to see the prisoners. We were warned to leave by 5 o'clock.

The leader accompanied us for a short distance chatting and fully in reply to the troops. In [illegible] shook hands with me as he left.

The chief told me that he would free only [illegible] when the first condition was fulfilled. [illegible] condition were complied with and only when the whole [illegible] was guaranteed. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] SHANTUNG, CHINA, May 18—Get [illegible]

[illegible]

Relations between the Chinese government and the representatives of foreign countries [illegible] described on all hands as strained as a result of the bandit situation.

Dr. Schurman kept in constant cable communication with Washington during his stay in Shanghai.

J. B. Powell and other captives have sent word from the mountain prisons that all the prisoners are beginning to feel the strain. Some are ill from insufficient and unaccustomed food. Other forced to make new marches with their feet unhealed from the bruises and cuts of the rocky trail from the scene of the holdup near Suchow are suffering intensely.

The bandits charge that the Chinese troops have not been withdrawn despite official assertions to the contrary. This apparently constitutes the greatest hitch to the negotiations for the captives' release.

Set yourself straight on these Bran facts!

If you eat bran it is because you seek relief from constipation and toxic poisoning!

To get the relief your physician will tell you that bran will give—you must be certain to get Kellogg's Bran, BECAUSE it is ALL BRAN! That is the kind your physician intends you to eat.

You only delay positive relief when you eat foods with a partial bran content, because they can only help you in proportion to the amount of bran they contain! You haven't time to waste on 25 per cent or 50 per cent relief when you know that Kellogg's Bran will give you 100 per cent relief BECAUSE IT IS ALL BRAN!

Every day's delay lets your condition become worse! Pills and cathartics can only aggravate distressing conditions. Part bran foods cannot permanently help you! They do not have the necessary bulk or roughage that makes ALL BRAN positive in its mechanical action! That is why Kellogg's Bran is a necessity!

Kellogg's Bran—because it is ALL BRAN—is GUARANTEED to give you permanent relief if you will eat two tablespoonfuls each day, or as much with each meal in chronic cases!

If you would realize how delicious Kellogg's Bran is—cooked, krumbled and ready to eat—and what it means to your health—you would not lose a minute starting to eat it! All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran in the Red and Green package.

STEEL SITUATION HAS NOW BECOME DECIDEDLY EASY

Buyers Well Supplied Have No Necessity to Bid Fancy Prices.

NO SCARCITY IN SIGHT

There is no occasion for any surprise to be felt that the steel situation has now become decidedly easy, says the American Metal Market That the market was beginning to round the turn was indicated late in March. There was not the beginning of a decline in prices, of course but a turn of the market from advancing into a straight stretch As usual, the first sign was found in scrap, which reached its high point about March 20 and then immediately began to soften Scrap is sensitive, finished steel prices are not

There have been two factors, one perfectly known, or at least knowable, and the other unknown until it developed, tending to make an easy steel situation, one in which buyers find themselves well supplied with steel and under no necessity of going out and bidding fancy prices for prompt deliveries

The first factor was that everyone had 1920 as a guide. Presumably everyone having mental capacity enough to remain in business to this date had sense enough to resolve, when this year began to show signs of being like 1920, to profit by 1920 experiences and to avoid losses and trouble experienced in 1920 The sellers would be more reserved about selling and the buyers would be more ready to buy, the one to avoid the oversold condition that existed in the second quarter of 1920 and the other to avoid having to pay fancy prices for spot lots in the summer as many had to do in 1920 The result is that buyers are now well covered while mills are not unduly sold ahead, and are making very good deliveries, according to their contracts, instead of many being far behind their contracts as was the case at this date in 1920.

The second factor was one that could not be known in advance That is, that steel production has increased right along, even in April In 1920, on account of the "outlaw" rail strikes begun April 1 steel ingot production decreased 17 per cent from March to April. This year the rate increased five per cent from March to April The common expectation was that on account of the large amount of outdoor work planned the advent of spring would make labor shortage at steel mills whereby production would decrease from March to April

Production of steel ingots has been at about 50,000,000 tons a year in the past two or three weeks Obviously there can be no scarcity of steel when there is such production. The capacity of the country to consume steel has its limits I will probably the consumption of steel will be, for months to come, up to the maximum of which the country is capable If the production of steel is now in excess of the consumption, as is not improbable, the production will probably begin declining in the not distant future. That will not mean that consumption of steel is decreasing The prospects for consumption are excellent.

Cars Distributed With Undue Prejudice to Mines on M. & W.

The Interstate Commerce has handed down a decision declaring that the practice of the director general of railroads in the distribution of coal cars to mines on the Monongahela and Morgantown & Wheeling railways, had been found to subject operators of mines on those roads to undue prejudice and disadvantage to extent that the percentage of cars furnished was less than the average percentage furnished mines in the same general coal producing region on the Pittsburg & Lake Erie and Pennsylvania railroads. Record held open on the question of damages

Orders for cars needed by the Morgantown & Wheeling Railway were placed with the Monongahela Railway, and by it with the trunk lines. Fact that the Wheeling was not under federal control immaterial as it was as much dependent upon the connections of the Monongahela for equipment as was the Monongahela itself, and its mines were entitled to equal treatment in the matter of car distribution.

It is not possible always for carriers to furnish particular mines their exact quota of cars during periods of car shortage, and if shortages or overages are adjusted with reasonable promptness a carrier may be said to have fulfilled its duty.

Miners Off to Russia Under Red Flag of Soviet

With the red flag of the Soviet flying above them, 35 American miners and their families sailed on the liner Reliance last week from New York for Russia, to work in the autonomous industrial colony Kuzbas.

A delegation of officials from the American Soviet headquarters witnessed the flag-raising. Among them were several Kuzbas leaders who had just been indicted the second time on charges of larceny preferred by Americans who have invested in the colony and returned to the United States disillusioned and disappointed.

If Flour Were Coal

Coal Age.

Census returns show that the value of the products of flour and grist mills in the United States in 1921 was nearly $1,200,000,000 The number of establishments engaged in the industry that year was 6,485. Thus it will be seen that in point of value and of number of plants the milling industry is comparable with that of the production of bituminous coal The decline in value of output from 1919 to 1921 was 12 per cent, compared with less than 9 per cent drop in the output by soft coal mines in the same two years

In other words, here is an industry about which little is heard, one that comes in for no berating by the public, one that has as great fluctuations, as great irregularity in operation, as bituminous coal Flour is as essential to public welfare, health and happiness as coal, perhaps more so in that all the flour is used for human consumption and but from 10 to 15 per cent of bituminous coal goes to householders The census reports also that the unit values of flour and grist-mill products were much higher in 1919, were in fact abnormal as a result of federal stimulation of production during the war. Yet there has been no long series of congressional investigations or a Flour Commission It is to be presumed that the operators of flour mills are just as human as coal men, with a normal desire to be engaged in a profitable business.

What are the conditions that have immunized flour? In the first place there is no United Flour Workers of America hence no stoppage of flour production Should 75 per cent of the flour mills be closed for five months because of a disagreement between the management and the men, a situation would arise demanding the attention of the federal government Although flour can be more easily stocked than coal, the country normally carries a reserve of less than 30 days' supply Should the production of flour be stopped for even a short period, prices most certainly would mount and actual want develop. But this has never happened.

In the last three years the production of wheat flour has ranged from 7,161,000 barrels to 13,917,000 barrels per month, a spread as wide as is found in the production of coal, save during national strikes. Yet the flour mills have had no occasion to complain of car shortage. The output of the mills apparently flows over the rails as regularly as it is produced and required If flour were to have the experience of bituminous coal there would be periods when customers could get but half the quantities they required or bought because the railroads were not able to furnish transportation.

Now, since the men who make and market flour are as numerous as those who produce soft coal, and since they are business men, large and small, as in the coal industry, there must be problems of production and of merchandising, cancellations of orders, questions of contract performance, of quality, and of price, such as characterize the coal trade. It is hardly to be thought that the flour industry functions perfectly May it not be that because it has not major labor problem and no difficult transportation situations flour is not like coal?

March Rail Return 5.84 Per Cent.

Complete returns of earnings of Class 1 railroads for March, filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission showed a total net income of $83,568,000. This amount, the association estimated, represented an annual return rate of 5.84 per cent on the value of railroad property. During March, 1922, the same carriers earned $83,487,000

FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 18, 1923.

A PROJECT OF SUPREME IMPORTANCE.

The approval by the Federal Power Commission of the application by the West Penn Power Company interests to carry the Cheat river hydro-electric development to completion, means more than making the water power of this stream available for conversion into electrical energy.

By the system of reservoirs which are to form a part of the project facilities will be provided for impounding the surplus water in the flood seasons and its gradual release during the low stage seasons. Two very important purposes will thus be served. Floods in the Monongahela and Ohio will be in part eliminated or their dangers reduced and a navigable stage can be maintained in the former during the low water periods.

Considerable money has already been expended by the authority of Congress in an investigation of the storage possibilities in the Cheat river watershed with a view to increasing the low water flow for navigation in the Monongahela and diminishing flood heights at Pittsburg, which, the Federal Power Commission says, "are conditions materially affecting navigation interests in this important region."

The plans of the West Penn system will, therefore, be precisely in line with those of the Federal Government with respect to flood control, while the impounded water will form a source of power which can be utilized to supplement the steam generating stations of the West Penn Power Company at South Connellsville, Windsor and Springdale. When thus equipped the West Penn will rate among the largest distributors of electrical energy in the country and will be in position to serve a constantly expanding territory.

Connellsville, the home of the West Penn, will have an increased interest in this great power generating and distributing enterprise because it will always be inseparably associated with its inception and growth. The expansion of industry in this section of the state, which has followed the enlargement of the West Penn's facilities, would otherwise have been of slow growth. As the Cheat river prolargement of the West Penn's facilities, the completion of the undertaking will be an event of supreme importance to Connellsville and all Southwestern Pennsylvania and Northern West Virginia.

The misfortune of the destruction by fire of the Pleasant Valley Country Club's barn will no doubt prove a great disappointment to those members who had planned to spend the summer in strenuous crop-raising activities on the land of the club with a view to filling the barn with the fruits of their labors.

The development of the Cheat river power project will be cheating the Yough of first honors in this line.

With the get-together meeting and dinner in Connellsville on May 31 and the annual tour to State College two weeks later the farmers of this section will not be lacking in diversions of a most pleasant character to relieve the tedium of the early summer season.

The Kiwanis Club has discovered the Carnegie Free Library and the Library has discovered the Kiwanis Club. Both are as pleased as they will be mutually benefitted.

Officials of the Indian Head National Bank deny the rumor that wampum is to be accepted as currency in the new financial institution of the Valley named in Indian legend and history.

Church and Sunday School additions are building large in the building boom now on in the First City of Fayette.

On Any Ticket

Hillsboro, Ill., Journal.

Henry Ford is running for president—

On any ticket!

The most interesting feature of national politics just now is the "Ford-For-President" boom which is spreading over the country from Detroit.

The richest man in the world, as Ford is now accorded, is said to be very ambitious to become president of the United States. This boom is gaining proportions which attract widespread notice. Clubs are being formed in many states and it is reported that the seven thousand Ford agents have been called upon by the Ford campaign organization to get behind the movement and help the cause in their communities.

From the inner circle of the Ford boomers comes the intelligence that the Detroit millionaire will enter both the Republican and Democratic primaries in every state, just as he did in senatorial contest in Michigan in 1918, with a view to contesting for the nomination in both national conventions if the first one held fails to name him. There is additional assurance from the same source that if neither of the major parties nominate him, Mr. Ford will seek to head a third party.

The Ford managers are confident that he will sweep the primaries. They are counting on the overwhelming support of the farmers, because of Ford's cheapening and improvement of rural transportation and of trucks and tractors and his promise of production of cheap fertilizers. By 1924 Ford will have turned out 8,000,000 automobiles which the Ford managers have not a doubt means 8,000,000 votes for the flivver.

The Ford shops are not unionized but union labor is reckoned as a Ford asset by the men behind his boom, because of his establishment of a $5 day minimum wage, and the south is expected to fall in line for him as a result of his proposal to develop water power and manufacturing at Muscle Shoals, Ala.

Mr. Ford now proposes to go William Jennings Bryan, who led the fight for bimetallism in 1896, one better. Energy would supplant gold as the basis of our currency under the Ford plan.

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest.

A NEW DAY.

Come on let's start anew today,
Let's fling the old mistake away,
The failures and the hurts and stings,
The misery of by-gone things,
And wipe the slate of want has been.
Here is a morning fresh and clean.
Untarnished by a rusty past,
A day no shame has overcast!

What was has gone. Along the way
Let us with splender fill today;
With this hour let us start anew,
Brave for the task we find to do,
What if we have not borne with fate?
To prove our worth 'tis not too late.
In every trial play the man.

Forget the past, though thick beset
With shame and failure and regret.
Here is a new and shining day
Of which no mortal tongue can say
An evil word. 'Tis yet too soon
Until the fading afternoon
It waits upon us all to see
How we shall write its history.

No man so low but cannot say:
"I will not stoop to shame today!
Beginning now I will be true,
This day I start my life anew.
I can be useful and I will,
Life has a place for me to fill."
Who would be good has but to say,
"I start my life anew today."

Pinchot Signs Soldier Bonus Enabling Bill

By Associated Press

HARRISBURG, May 18.—Governor Pinchot yesterday signed nine bills, among them that of Representative Dunn, Philadelphia, providing enabling legislation for the payment of a soldier's bonus to World War veterans if the proposed bond issue of $35,000,000 for this purpose is approved by the voters.

The Dunn bill would place the payment of the bonus with the adjutant general. Veterans of the state who had served for 60 days or longer would be eligible to the bonus at the rate of $10 per month for the time in service but payments would be limited to $200. The bill carries an appropriation of $162,625 for expenses.

The joint resolutions providing for the printing of 2,500 copies each of the proceedings of the memorial services to the late United States Senators Boies Penrose and William E. Crow and State Senator Edwin H. Vare, were signed by Governor Pinchot.

Three Slightly Hurt When Struck by Auto

Mrs. Lyle [illegible] Bitner, Mrs. Catherine Guley of Uniontown and Miss Mutsko of Leisenring were run down by an automobile driven by Sam [illegible] Planoff of Pittsburg, yesterday afternoon in front of the West Penn street car station here but escaped with minor injuries. The machine passed over the boy but no wheels touched him. Planoff, though not arrested, was required to place a $25 forfeit for his appearance in court this morning. He did not show up but the forfeit will not be lifted until this evening.

The accident occurred when the lad stepped from the sidewalk and was struck. The driver apparently became excited and the machine headed for the curb striking the two women. Mrs. Guley was taken to the office of a physician for treatment.

Casting Falls on Foot.

Thomas Nee, general night foreman of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad shops here, suffered a painful injury last night when a heavy casting fell on his left foot. He was removed to his Patterson avenue home.

Grim Reaper

THOMAS J. COOK.

Thomas J. Cook, 75 years old, a former resident of Leisenring No. 1, died Wednesday at his home at Braddock, following an illness of about four years, aggravated by brooding over the death of his son, Patrick J. Cook, who was the first soldier of Fayette county to lose his life in the World War. He was killed in the battle of Chateau Thierry on July 18, 1918. The deceased was born in Ireland and was the son of Michael, deceased, and Bridget Murray Cook of Leisenring No. 1, who came to this country when their son was 12 years of age. Mr. Cook was well known in this vicinity, having been employed by the H. C. Frick Coke Company at Leisenring for a number of years until ill health forced him to retire. He was also an active member of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Braddock and was an active member of the St. Thomas Roman Catholic Church. He is survived by his wife, Mary Conroy Cook, and five children, Michael, Thomas, Julia, Anna and Bridget, all at home. His mother, Bridget Murray Cook, and two brothers, Michael of Leisenring and Christopher of Warren, Ohio, survive. A brother, Patrick, was killed on the same day in the same battle in which his son lost his life. The brother was a member of the "Fighting 69th" of New York City. Mr. Cook's son was a member of Company D, 110th Infantry.

Funeral Director W. A. McNanamy will bring the body here tomorrow afternoon on Baltimore & Ohio train No. 18. It will be taken to the home of the deceased's brother, Michael, at Leisenring. The funeral will be held Monday morning at 9 from the home, with requiem high mass at 9:30 o'clock in the St. Vincent De Paul Roman Catholic Church at Leisenring. The interment will be made in the church cemetery.

MRS. EDWARD A. SPANGLER.

Mrs. Annie Joanna Critchfield Spangler, 68 years old, wife of Edward A. Spangler, formerly of Rockwood, died Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Way, of Johnstown, with whom she and her husband had been making their home since last November. Mrs. Spangler had been bedfast for the past 11 weeks. She had never fully recovered following an operation at Mercy Hospital last August.

Annie Joanna Critchfield was born in Black township, Somerset county, on February 26, 1855. She was a daughter of Jacob and Mary Dull Critchfield, both deceased. In September, 1853, she and Edward A. Spangler were united in marriage in Black township. They moved to Rockwood, where they resided for about 39 years. Mrs. Spangler is survived by the husband and the following children: Harry, Somerset; Willis, Rockwood; George, Hooversville; Mrs. Charles Jowman, Somerset; Mrs. Margaret Way, Frank and Blanche Spangler, all of Johnstown. The following brothers and sisters also survive: Oliver Critchfield, Black township, Somerset county; Edward Critchfield, Omaha, Neb.; Mrs. Edward Hoover, Somerset; Mrs. Louise Critchfield, Rockwood; Mrs. Charles Knepper, Berlin, and Mrs. Emma Schrock, Crete, Neb.

Funeral services will be held at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the residence of a daughter, Mrs. Charles Bowman, at Somerset. Burial will be at Rockwood.

HERBERT KNOX.

The very simple but deeply impressive funeral services for Herbert Knox, who died near Pittsburg Tuesday afternoon, were held at the Presbyterian Church, Brownsville, yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. Production Cut at Both Merchant and Furnace Operations Last Week

Designedly by the Former But Accidentally by the Latter.

TOTAL TONNAGE 297,720

Smallest Since the Last Week in March; Some Uncertainty as to Necessity for Further Curtailment; Some Operators Note More Activity.

From The Weekly Courier.

Coke production by both the furnace and merchant interests declined last week, but not precisely for the same cause in each case.

The latter continued their efforts to avoid the dangers of overproduction, employing a lay-off day at many plants and blowing out some ovens at others as means to keep output within the limits now prescribed by the decreased demand, particularly for furnace coke. The combination of these curtailment measures with an interruption in car supply late in the week, produced the effect desired by the operators to the extent of cutting their quota of production by 2,560 tons. The furnace operators directed their energies to further augmenting their production in which they succeeded fairly well until the disarrangement in car supply began on Thursday. This was not in the nature of a shortage, taking the week as a whole, which averaged around 97 per cent distribution, but because of failure to receive cars as they were needed for placement in time for the day's loading. Because of this break in what has been exceptional regular car service for several weeks past, the furnace plants, served by the Pennsylvania railroad lost production sufficient to load upwards of 300 cars. In the emergency they stocked slightly over 5,100 tons on the yards at hand-drawn plants.

The decline in furnace production was not, as in the case of the merchant operators, designed as the week's program. The result, however, had that effect in that the decrease of 4,930 tons in furnace output, added to the falling off at merchant plants, brought the regional total down to 297,720 tons, the smallest since the last week in March.

It is not yet apparent whether the merchant operators have cut their output cloth to conform to the garment of demand, but it is believed there is a close approximation to that result. Shipments on account of furnace contracts continue to be heavy which relieve the consumers of all anxiety as to coke supply for immediate needs as well as making it unnecessary for them to go into the market for occasional lots of spot coke to fill out shortages on contract receipts—a condition which develops when there is a larger or more active demand than at present exists for spot coke from the trade outside of furnaces.

Some merchant producers report slightly better demand and a tendency to a firming up of prices which is taken as an indication that the liquidation has about run its course. Among the operators the view obtains that any further recession in price will bring it on the wrong side of the line defining the limits of safety in the matter of making sales of their product, hence the increasing determination to withdraw from the market rather than accept commitments at too low a figure for profit, unless it be for small tonnages only and that for the purpose of holding plant organizations intact.

The coal market is still unsatisfactory from the producer's point of view, demand being light and prices unattractive. Coal car supply is not so good as it was last week but is about sufficient for prevailing needs.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended Saturday, May 12, was 297,720 tons, contributed by the two districts as follows: Connellsville, 167,010, a decrease of 2,040 tons; Lower Connellsville, 129,510, a decrease of 6,440 tons, or a total decrease of 8,480 tons as compared with an increase of 2,980 tons during the week preceding.

By interests the production was: Furnace, 179,400, a loss of 4,930 tons; merchant, 118,320, a loss of 2,500 tons, as compared with gains of 2,980 and 500 tons respectively during the week ended May 5.

The net gain of 55 ovens was the difference between 146 fired at furnace plants and 91 blown out at merchant plants. The former were all at Frick operations as follows:

Bitner, 15; Central, 36; Mammoth, 14; Shoaf, newly fired, 81.

At merchant plants 17 ovens were fired up as follows: Gilmore, five; Grace, two; Poland, 28; Shamrock, 12; Thompson No. 2, two. There were 138 ovens blown out as follows: Beatty, 82; LaBelle, 15; Sterling, 40; Tower Hill No. 2, one; making net decrease 91.

Production by the two interests and the total compared with the corresponding week in 1922 is shown herewith:

FOOTBALLS FOR POILUS

Paris Sends "Parcels for Soldiers" to the Ruhr.

"Parcels for soldiers" are leaving Paris for Dusseldorf daily in carload lots, just as they used to be forwarded to the front during the war, and are helping to remind the French people of the continuing military occupation of the Ruhr.

Cigarettes and tobacco of all kinds, except that for chewing, form the bulk of the five-pound packages, with food and candy a good second. Games, fruit, books and jellies and jams are also popular with the army of occupation. One hundred footballs, sent at the special request of several units, formed one package which brought joy to the lonely poilus.

Now On Exhibition at Our Store

The exhibition of the Furniture Makers' Art, held in Chicago, Grand Rapids and elsewhere during January, taken as a whole, was the most noteworthy exposition the furniture industry has ever known. Our buyers were on hand early and our stock is now running over with the best the market offered but the real sensation of this year's market was conceded to be

The housewife's battle against moths and germs is an old one. She has used the old method of external spraying with germicides made of kerosene and various chemicals but these failed because the moth and germ seek shelter deep down in the hair, the moss, the tow and the filling of the furniture where they carry on their work of propagation and destruction.

But now comes Rex Sanitized Upholstered Furniture which, in the making, is subjected to a new and exclusive process of degermination that makes it germ-free and permanently moth-proof both inside and out. Now you can let your furniture stand all summer or put it in storage knowing it will be immune from moth and insect harm, and moreover, the Rex Sanitizing Process will neither injure the most delicate fabric nor leave the slightest odor.

Comfort as Well as Sanitation

This furniture is built for comfort—it represents the highest attainment of art, skill and science yet it costs no more than the ordinary kind. Because of its splendid workmanship and fine materials and because moths and other insects cannot injure or destroy it, it LASTS LONGER.

Beautiful Style and Finish

Astonishingly Priced

Exceptional manufacturing methods eliminate waste in building Rex Sanitized Upholstered Furniture which with the fact of its enormous production enables us to offer you a fine selection of this beautiful, moth-proof, germ-free furniture at surprisingly low prices.

Rex Special

A suite of astonishing value—it was the sensation of the Chicago Furniture Market. Its beauty cannot be pictured—it must be seen and then one can hardly comprehend how it can be sold at such a price.

Realizing its unusual merit we purchased it in quantity so that we could give our customers the benefit of a low price. And remember every bit of material used in the construction is thoroughly cleaned, disinfected and treated by the exclusive Rex Sanitizing Process which makes it permanently moth and germ proof and absolutely hygienic.

Every piece bears the makers' nameplate which is their guarantee and your protection.

"THE FLAME OF LIFE"—Featuring Priscilla Dean long recognized as a leader in vital emotional work on the screen, splendid entertainment today and tomorrow at this theatre

The story is that of a girl who couldn't read or write, whose environment was that of a mining town in Northern England, whose life at home was composed mainly of beatings by her father, and whose only spur was the friendship of the overman of the mine, a friendship strongly suspected and ridiculed by the poverty-stricken but independent people around her

The role affords opportunity for a brilliant characterization by the Dean of the screen A great mine catastrophe for which mile long sections of tunnels and shafts were exploded, precipitates the climax in a smashing run of thrills

Three "kid" players of picturedom are going to draw unusual comment from critics for work in minor roles Richard Daniels, Frankie Lee and Nancy Caswell are the youngsters They have not a great deal to do, but the nature of the story demanded "types" above all thing, and the three kiddies offered type qualifications in addition to ability remarkable in children. All their work in the picture is not important It is one of those deft touches in character atmosphere for which Hobart Henley is noted.

'OUTCAST"—With Elsie Ferguson, the noted Paramount star, in the feature attraction today and tomorrow at this theatre

The story of this impressive and thrilling photoplay deals with the efforts of Miriam, a deserted wife who is thrown into the streets through poverty, to reclaim a man who dissipates because of his hopeless love for a fickle woman The various phases of this picture narrative which have their climax in an attempt at suicide and rescue at sea, are highly thrilling and all in all, the role portrayed by Miss Ferguson is said by her to be one of the strongest she has essayed during her screen career of five years'

"Outcast' is a picturization of the play of the same name by H H Davies, in which Miss Ferguson starred in New York in 1914 The role of Miriam is an exacting one, requiring histrionic ability of a high order David Powell well known leading man, plays opposite Miss Ferguson, and Mary MacLaren who was leading woman for Wallace Reid and other stars, has the role of Valentine

The supporting cast includes among others, William Powell, William David, Charles Wellesly and Teddy Sampson.

Ingot Production Nearing 50,000,000 Tons Yearly Mark

The United States Steel Corporation is today producing ingots at the rate of almost 22,000 000 tons a year, that is within 700,000 tons a year of its practical capacity based upon equipment. The rate of output is within three per cent of the rated capacity with a normal supply of labor

Independent steel companies are credited with employing 93 per cent of capacity If this rate is being maintained the independent companies as a whole are producing steel at the rate of 27,040,000 tons a year that is the industry as a whole is producing ingots at the rate of 49,912,000 tons a year The theoretical capacity of Bessemer converters and open-hearth furnaces is very close to 58,500,000 tons a year

INFERIORITY COMPLEX MAY BE MOTIVE BEHIND "POISON PEN" LETTERS

GEORGE MAXWELL SOCIETY CONFIDANT, INDICTED AS ALLEGED WRITER OF SCURRILOUS LETTERS REFLECTING ON WIFE OF ALLAN A RYAN, FINANCIER, AND MRS. ALBERT H. GALLATIN, REPORTED TO HAVE RECEIVED SOME OF 1?? 'POISON PEN' LETTERS WHOSE WRITERS ARE SOUGHT BY THE AUTHORITIES.

NEW YORK—What is the motive behind the flood of letters with base insinuations against a dozen prominent New York women? Officials say they do not believe it was blackmail are seeking a malevolent genius who may be at the bottom of a w d plot. But one of New York's most celebrated psychiatrists sees evil motive He believes the writer of an anonymous letter of this description was a man who felt keenly his inability to attract women or excite their interest. Suffering from the consciousness of this inferiority, he wrote letters picturing himself as the hero of indiscreet escapades, according to this theory.

SHORT COATS ON THE STYLE LIST

Abbreviated Wraps, in Gay Hues, Promise to Remain in Field of Fashion.

Women are having a really good time with the little short coats writes a fashion observer in the New York Times. There is so much novelty about them—so much that is new and bright and cheerful. And then they are economical. They help out other costumes. They add just enough of color to a dark gown and they can be used with separate skirts. Really, their possibilities are unending. They have taken the popular fancy and are bound to ingratiate themselves so much that they will last a long time in the field of fashion.

It has been stated over and over again that embroidery rules the season but it is only when we come to a consideration of the short coat that we realize the strength of that statement. Embroidery runs riot in this particular and if the coat is not embroidered over every inch of its surface then it has trimmings and edgings and facings of stitches that are fascinating to see.

The principal beauty of these shorter coats is that they are colorful and decorative. There are many ways of making them so. A plain short coat is as nothing at all. It loses all excuse for being.

One of the French designers did a very clever thing with a short coat by making its outside surface of dark blue heavy satin and its inner surface of bright red silk ... It was short and straight and ... in line and so finished that it could be worn on the blue side or the red, which ever pleased its wearer. Of course on either occasion the contrasting color and material showed as a ... of ... ing and ... it was intended to be worn over a plain ... dress of ... When ... the red coat made a lovely combination ... other times the blue coat ... suffice with just the glimpses of red to give the costume relief and trimming.

Line Becoming to Most Women

The short coat line is becoming to most women if they arrange it cleverly. For the ... American woman there could be no better design. She can afford to have the line of her clothes broken and the ... of a colorful little jacket is something that helps her to appear at her best. For the woman whose proportions are on a larger scale the color of the coat must be more in keeping with the color of the ... and the design so arranged that the line ... of the jacket sweep into the line of the skirt without too much division about the hips. On this point the woman who is going to buy one of these short jackets should be most insistent. In that lies her salvation. But imagine her disappointment if she lets that consideration go unnoticed and comes home to see herself looking 100 per cent broader than she expected.

The plaited skirt is the natural accompaniment of the shorter coat. All sorts of other skirts are worn with them but the plaits serve the purpose satisfactorily. They seem to blend with the whole idea—and a plaited skirt when it is kept pressed and flat is just as good for a stout woman as it is for her more slender sister. She keeps her straight line when she wears it and at the same time adopts the fuller mode that is creeping into the skirts.

The short coats are a new development and need to be studied before we can expect individuality to adapt them to our own uses in the most effective way. There is one an embroidered type—illustrative of the manner in which these coats are handled. Its lines are straight and uncompromising. It is embroidered by hand over its entire surface. Its color is gray and the stitches that make up the all over pattern are done in wool in the most brilliant of tones giving more of a Russian effect than any other sort. The edges are bound with black and a vivid green ribbon, the latter color repeating one that is predominant in the embroidery. The lining is a somewhat lighter shade of gray crepe. The skirt is gray kasha and the blouse is the same color crepe that is used for the lining of the coat.

Numerous Styles Available

This is an excellent example of the straight coat done with attention to the required details and attuned to the figure with the utmost simplicity. It is not supposed to be buttoned. Its collar is shaped to stand high about the throat, giving that becoming finish which a coat of this character must have in order to be ... satisfactory. Its sleeves are fitted at the armholes doing away with any bulky effect and there is a flare at the wrists with just enough width to bring them in the bounds of present day smart fashions.

If a hand embroidered coat is out of the question then there are plenty to be had done by machine and as beautiful as can be. And, if this idea is not entirely satisfactory, then you can find other jackets of this same type merely trimmed with outlines of embroidery in a less dressy group. They can be worn at almost any hour of the day, for they are an accepted spring note and as long as they are so smart, you will find yourself well dressed in one of them no matter what you have elected to do with your time.

The bloused coat is another type. It is extremely popular, and it has that informality of appearance which permits it to be worn with a separate dress if that is the way in which you wish to use it. Many of these little jackets tie at the sides and they are not by any means fastened with small and inconspicuous bows. On the contrary, the bows are wide and spreading. They are made of stiff taffeta ribbons and they have streamers that reach in many instances to the hem of the skirt. Indeed the bow that serves to tie them into place is a considerable part of the design of the coat. Still others are provided with wide belts and these usually clasp with ornamental buckles at one side.

Many of these little informal coats are made of silk. It can be plain silk or quilted, but they have taken, in one form or another, a fast hold upon the interest of America and, developed in one way or another, the short silk coat is going to enjoy a season of great popularity.

Some Retain Peplum

One nice thing about the silk coat is that one can wear it with a soft draped silk dress with the best effect in the world. One of these is made of an almond green silk and is worn with a putty colored silk frock. The coat then has a straight little band of a collar done in silk embroidery, and the belt is made up of a wider strip of the same sort of decoration. As the dress is strictly plain, relying upon its draped lines for distinction the coat supplies the motif of trimming for the frock and makes of the whole a decidedly interesting costume.

Some of the shorter jackets retain the peplum and with good effect, but they must be made of the right materials to give the best satisfaction. They are more tailored and sporting in their character and therefore they must be made of fabrics suited to this sort of wear.

One of the newest coats of this type is the one made of suede. It is a charming thing and made its first appearance in Paris.

The Short Coat of Suede Is Popular, and One of Fashion's Latest Expressions.

PHARAOH HAD INSOMNIA

Papyrus Reveals Hippopotami Disturbed Tut Ankh-Amen's Sleep

A piece of papyrus just translated by the British museum shows that King Tut Ankh Amen suffered from insomnia. Responsibility for the Pharaoh's ailment seems to have rested with certain hippopotami which made so much noise as they wallowed in the sacred lakes of Thebes that he found sleep impossible.

The papyrus tells of a quarrel the ancient monarch had with the owner of the beasts over whether the King's slumber should be sacrificed to their physical comfort. How the dispute was settled is not disclosed.

TURK CAPITAL IS RICH IN HISTORY

Angora Stronghold on Frontiers of Roman Empire.

WAS OCCUPIED BY CRUSADERS

Angora is picturesque directly you get outside it for only then can you see the two Gibraltar like rocks that form the background to the present-day town They lie end to end, separated by a steep ravine through which rushes a narrow, muddy stream.

The hill on the further side of this river is bare, except for a crumbling pile of stones which passes for the ruins of a memorial to the legend that Tamerlane stood there in 1402 to review his army of Mongols after it had overthrown Sultan Bayazid in the plain below But the rocky height that looms above Angora town is crowned with an unbroken wall of mediaval fortifications.

Its bastions are of red sandstone, and shaped to a sharp point, like the bows of a ship The unconscious vandalism of the Middle ages is witnessed in its structure for among the huge freestone blocks that form it are built in all sorts of relics of the dead and gone Angoras of the past. Here is a delicately fluted cornice from an old Greek temple Close by the fragment of some majestic Roman inscription, clear cut as the day it was first carved, recalls the time when Angora was a stronghold of the frontiers of the Roman empire Gravestones and broken bits of friezes milestones and Roman altars have all gone to strengthen the still unbroken wall

Oddly Foreign Look

Lower down the hill stand the gray ruins of a castle of feudal type Perhaps Godefroy de Bouillon built it when the Crusaders held Angora for twenty years It has an oddly foreign look here in the heart of Asia Minor Its crumbling battlements would harmonize much better with a background of green English meadowland or Norman orchards.

But apart from this hill citadel Angora has no characteristics that it does not share with every other of the drab village towns of Anatolia Yet half hidden behind its larger mosque is a splendid relic of what must have been an Angora out of all comparison, more beautiful and stately It is the ruined fragment of a Roman temple of Augustus, just a square decorated archway 60 feet high leading to a chancel in which a flight of steps goes down to a vaulted dungeon beneath where the altar must have stood entered by a doorway only two feet high The walls of this monument to a race that was not only conquering but constructive are of freestone with several courses of sandstone of a brilliant crimson They still bear broken patches of frieze of Greek wave design and in another place, of a conventional pattern representing apparently an octopus

Much of this old Roman masonry that still stands so firmly is inscribed with half effaced histories of the campaigns of the Divine Augustus" carved as the Latin script says by his own order But there are also many marks of its eventful history since those times

Made by Crusader?

Here is a Maltese cross hammered out with the chisel Did some idle crusader perhaps from far away England, fill in his afternoon by making it? Close by an industrious Turk has chipped a long phrase in the difficult calligraphy of his language and opposite a modern Greek, in an impulse of bravado has scratched his name with the date 1914 1922

Tombstones of old Roman prefects lie prone on the ground and close by them stand the turbaned headstones of the graves of Turkish janissaries who died here in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries

The idea of rebuilding some such imposing city as the Romans set upon this open and lofty plateau is strong in the minds of the new Turkish government They find it in the plain outside the present town and say that its avenues will be broader than the Champs Elysees. The scheme in its present form, reminds one rather of the layout of the city of Eden, where Martin Whitehall of Angora is the railway station for there the Premier lives in what was meant for the stationmaster's house while the French representative has a similar building on the platform and the American emissary to the Angora government with his wife occupies a railway coach fitted up inside as the most delightfully compact bungalow imaginable

SLIGHT DECREASE IN BY-PRODUCT OUTPUT IN MONTH OF APRIL

Due to One Less Working Day; Daily Average Gained 2,000 Tons.

TOTAL WAS 3,206,000 TONS

The output of by-product coke showed a slight decrease in April, says the United States Geological Survey's monthly report. The total production for the month was 3,206,000 net tons, against 3,256,000 tons in March. The fact that there was one less working day in April was responsible for the decline, and the average daily rate of production increased from 105,000 to 107,000 tons. The quantity of coke actually produced was 88.7 per cent of the capacity of the plants in operation, a percentage that compares favorably with that in preceding periods when demand for coke has been most active. Of the 70 by-product plants, 64 were active and six were idle. One plant that has produced no coke for many months was reported permanently abandoned and being dismantled.

Unlike by-product coke, the production of beehive coke increased slightly. The total output was 1,776,000 net tons, against 1,749,000 tons in March. It is of interest to note that of the total output of all coke, 64.4 per cent was contributed by by-product plants and 35.6 per cent by beehive ovens, whereas in 1920, 59.5 per cent and 40.5 per cent, respectively, were furnished by the two branches of the industry.

The present rate of production of all coke—4,982,000 tons—exceeds the average monthly rate in 1920 by 669,000 tons, or 15.5 per cent.

Exclusive of screenings and breeze the monthly average output of coke 1917-1922, both years inclusive, and during the past three months of 1923, has been as follows in net tons:

	By-Product	Beehive
1917	1,870,000	2,764,000
1918	2,160,000	2,546,000
1919	2,095,000	1,638,000
1920	2,505,000	1,748,000
1921	1,046,000	462,000
1922	2,874,000	859,000
February, 1923	2,810,000	1,482,000
March, 1923	3,256,000	1,749,000
April, 1923	3,206,000	1,776,000

To manufacture the coke produced in April it is estimated that 7,408,000 tons of coal were consumed, of which 4,607,000 tons were used in by-product ovens and 2,801,000 tons in beehive ovens. From the table below it will be seen that the present rate of consumption is 16.7 per cent more than the average monthly rate in 1920, and 4.6 per cent more than that in 1918, when demands for wartime purposes were at their height. These averages are based on an assumed yield of 69.6 per cent of the coal charged in by-product and 63.4 per cent charged in beehive ovens.

	By-Product	Beehive
1917	2,625,000	4,356,000
1918	3,072,000	4,014,000
1919	2,985,000	2,478,000
1920	3,684,000	2,565,000
1921	2,403,000	706,000
1922	3,411,000	1,056,000
February, 1923	4,037,000	1,056,000
March, 1923	4,070,000	2,750,000
April, 1923	4,607,000	2,801,000

Labor Situation Grows Serious

The shortage of labor is being sharply felt in mills, on railroads and farms, says the most recent report of the State Employment Bureau. Referring to the needs in the various lines the report gives the following summary:

"Agriculture: Farming conditions are very chaotic owing to the shortage of help. Not only is the number of persons choosing agriculture pursuits decreasing, but many of the regular farm hands are migrating to the city to follow industrial, building, construction and commercial work. Statistics received from reliable sources show that in Cumberland county 170 farms are idle. The conclusion is that the labor famine will cut down acreage planted and to be planted.

"Building and construction: Activities along these lines continue unabated. In addition to the many operations which are under course of construction, many new ones have been started. There is a shortage of carpenters, plumbers, plasterers, paperhangers, painters, roofers and common laborers. At present the supply of bricklayers, pipefitters, stonemasons, sheet metal workers and electricians is adequate. State and municipal improvements and repairs are being temporarily held up until some of the other work is finished and the demand for workmen decreases.

"Metal and machinery: Iron and steel mills and other metal industries are very busy; all of which are in need of skilled, semiskilled and unskilled workers. The larger concerns have been transporting Mexican labor from Texas to this district. The smaller mills are handicapped owing to their inability to secure help.

"Mines and quarries: Mines are operating regularly with a full quota men. A serious shortage of quarry workers exists."

"Farewell Blues"

THE Georgians have packed this fox-trot selection with syncopated romance and rhythm till it fairly snaps with dance magnetism.

Never, in all your days—or evenings—have you trotted to anything that surpasses "Farewell Blues," Columbia New Process Record A-3864, for sparkle and spice and pep and go.

And on the other side is their equally artistic rendition of "Snake's Hips," another fox-trot that will make you wonder which is entitled to the blue ribbon.

Millions depend on S.S.S. to purify their Blood

SINCE the days of the Cherokee Indians, man has relied upon nature to produce certain barks and herbs to purify the blood. Today, the manufacturers of S. S. S. gather thousands of tons of these certain barks and herbs annually and prepare in concentrated form, scientifically proportioned, that great blood purifier, called S. S. S. This is why S. S. S., since 1826, has been such a great success. It has meant to millions of underweight men and women a plus in their strength. S. S. S. builds blood-power. It builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting power. And fighting power destroys impurities! It always wins! It fights pimples, it fights skin eruptions, it fights rheumatism. It builds nerve-power—thinking power. There are the reasons which have made S. S. S. today the greatest blood-cleanser, body builder and success builder.

Mr. James Chalough, Camp Sherman School, Chillicothe, Ohio, writes: "I feel like a new man after taking S.S.S. It gave me a better appetite and cleared my skin of pimples and blackheads."

Try it yours. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size is more economical. Get a bottle today!

Monopoly of Mine Labor By Unionization of All Fields Plan of U. M. W.

Leaders Declare It Is Only Means of Stabilizing Mining Industry.

GRAVE MENACE TO PUBLIC

Can be Ignored Because "the Moral Responsibility of the Operators and Miners Would be so Great They Could Not Refuse to Make Agreements on Reasonable Wage Scales."

The claim that complete unionization of the coal mining fields would serve to stabilize the industry, presented in a statement submitted to the United States Coal Commission sometime ago by Editor Searles of the United Mine Workers Journal, has been advanced to the form of a very frank admission that bringing this condition about is the program of the organization. In what is in an effect a demand with this end in view is embodied in a joint statement of Philip Murray, international vice-president, and William Green, international secretary-treasurer, submitted to the commission a few days ago.

According to Mr. Murray, the only practical way in which the question of non-unionism in the unorganized fields can be settled and differences existing in those sections be composed is "to bring about for the non-union mining territory working agreements which will safeguard properly the fundamental rights of mine workers and mine operators, protect the public and provide a just and reasonable basis for working relations and conditions. The safeguards which are essential to regularity of production and of peace and tranquillity are:

"1. The guarantee of freedom of speech, freedom of assembly, freedom of movement.

"2. The right of all workers to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing.

"3. The protection of mine workers against discrimination because of membership in the U. M. W. of A. or any other labor organization.

"4. The assurance that democratic institutions, such as the U. M. W. of A., will not be subordinated to industrial control by the practice of the non-union coal operators in paying and controlling deputy sheriffs, and constables or by employing private guards instead of using the services of disinterested and conscientious peace officers.

"The alleged reasons of the non-union operators for their refusal to bargain collectively with the U. M. W. of A. is that we have a sinister purpose to organize the entire mining industry with a view to obtaining control of the industry, or that we plan to freeze the public into acceptance of a radical and revolutionary program for the future conditions of the industry. * * * We do seek to organize the entire coal industry, but our sole purpose is to seek uniformity of wages and working conditions and regularity and continuity of employment, and thereby to bargain collectively with the operators on terms approaching equality. All the coal operators in the country, including those in the non-union fields, are organized in a single, compact national organization known as the National Coal Association. In all fairness, it should be possible for all the miners of the country, including those in the non-union fields, to be united in their national organization so that they may meet the maximum economic strength of the operators with the maximum economic strength of the mine workers."

This monopolistic desire, asserts Mr Murray, embodies nothing sinister, radical or revolutionary. All the union wants is recognition of its right to organize and friendly, harmonious relations with the operators, an era of "come, let's reason together." If, he argues, the program of the U. M. W. had not been honorable and its cause just, it could not have reached the position of influence it now occupies. "We do not seek to control the coal industry," continues Mr. Murray, "but we do demand a voice in its control. Advocates of the open shop have taken as their slogan, 'Those who pay should have the say.' That means going back to the Dark Ages when might made right. Today the whole world knows that might does not make right, but that right makes might, and we believe that we are fundamentally and eternally right.

"Our organization stands for industrial peace, the stabilizing of conditions of employment and for the continuity and acceleration of production. The non-union operators have nothing to offer except arbitrary action and industrial autocracy. The fruits of their policy are industrial and civil warfare. If their policies were applied on a more general scale, they would be followed by industrial and political chaos. Unionism has brought to a disturbed and diseased industry the stabilizing force of equitable wage rates and fair working conditions. This has permitted both employes and employers to devote their attention to the primary job of producing coal without the loss of time, energy and efficiency incident to continuous bickerings over wage rates and working conditions. The employe, moreover, because of the union, becomes more intelligent and a more self-respecting and efficient worker."

Collective bargaining is meaningless without union recognition, insists Mr. Green. This is an age of organization and "it would be inconsistent if society would recognize the right of individuals to form partnerships and corporations for profit, to permit the existence of religious, fraternal, social, economic and political organizations, and at the same time deny working people the right to organize for the purpose of economic protection and to secure better and higher standards of life." Union recognition and collective bargaining, he continues, are accepted facts in the coal industry, with wage agreements negotiated by joint conference for over 21 years in the anthracite industry and 30 years in the organized bituminous fields.

So successful have been these negotiations, according to Mr. Green, that in all that time there have been only two general anthracite strikes (1902 and 1922) and two national bituminous strikes (1919 and 1922). "This record becomes the more remarkable when we consider that these wage scales were negotiated through voluntary action on the part of the coal operators and miners. * * * Joint wage agreements in effect for fixed periods of time serve to stabilize the industry and to guarantee an adequate coal supply. No interruption of mining operations because of a strike can take place during the life of a joint agreement."

The unorganized fields, asserts the international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, have no guarantee against strikes. Because there is no fixed agreement, men may quit whenever they become dissatisfied. On the other hand, with union recognition and joint agreements, both employer and employe participate in wage negotiations and "by entering into contractual relations assume responsibilities and obligations which are at least morally binding and tend to promote efficiency among employes and economy in production.

"As in every industry, therefore, there are in the mining industry good and bad employers, none of which should have the authority arbitrarily to fix the wages and working conditions which their employes must accept. Those who work and serve in industry are as essential to success as those who operate and manage the industry. Each has rights which the other should respect. Neither should become a dictator, because that would be autocracy in industry, something which is repugnant to the American sense of fair play." And that perfect and necessary harmony can be won only through union recognition, which means "collective bargaining, wage contracts for fixed periods of time, efficiency, the substitution of reason and business methods for force and and subjection, and the establishment of stability and industry resulting in guaranteed production, while non-unionism means inefficiency, uncertainty, industrial guerilla warfare, strikes (because men long held in subjection will ultimately fight for the right to belong to a union and for union recognition), and the lowering of the American standard of citizenship."

Mr. Green admits that union monopoly would give the United Mine Workers of America the power to paralyze industry and the nation at will, but contends that this "grave menace to the welfare, comfort and happiness of the American people" can be ignored because. "1 There could be no strike except at the termination of a contract period and then only in the event of a failure to agree upon a new wage agreement. 2 The moral responsibility of the operators and miners would be so great and solemn that they could not, except in extreme emergency, refuse to agree upon the terms and conditions of a fair and reasonable wage scale.

"Human experience shows that responsibility sobers men so that they seriously consider their obligations and duties to themselves and their fellowmen. They hesitate under the weight of such responsibilities to incur public displeasure and to fly in the face of public opinion. Then back of it all is the powerful irresistible force of public sentiment. It is the court which, after all, compels recognition. No organization or group of men can successfully carry out a movement which is opposed to public sentiment, and vice versa, organizations and groups of men are compelled to respond to the demand of crystallized public opinion in an affirmative way. It is this powerful, compelling, moral force which after all settles every great question affecting the public interest. The inevitable result of the workings of such a plan would be wage agreements for fixed periods of time and uninterrupted operation of the coal mines. This is a result much desired by all good American citizens and a condition in industry for the establishment of which we may all worthily strive."

Philadelphia Traffic Officer Highly Prizes Tanlac

WM. F. CLARKE.

"I haven't quite finished my first bottle of Tanlac yet, but it has already helped me so much I am glad to give it my endorsement" said William F. Clarke, 2330 Watkins St., Philadelphia, popular traffic officer stationed at Fifth and Market streets.

I got a bottle of Tanlac last week, and already I can eat a big, hearty meal without any trouble afterwards and I feel much better generally. I am convinced that Tanlac is a great medicine for the stomach and I intend to keep on taking it for awhile in order to be sure my troubles are entirely relieved."

FLOUNCES OF 1880

Decoration Is Applied Anywhere Between the Waistline and the Hem.

Last autumn the assertion was heard on all sides, there is nothing new in the styles of women's clothes. This statement, asserts a fashion writer in the New York Tribune was an unfair criticism of the work of artists who are constantly laboring not only for the betterment of women's dress, but to give fresh impetus to all trades and industries pertaining hereto.

As far back as last summer clever designers advanced many new ideas which were to bring about striking changes in women's dress. The ideas at that time were kept exclusive but as time went on they took root and their fruits are now seen everywhere.

Distinct and definite fashion notes are apparent in fabrics in designs for dresses, suits and in millinery. The 1880 silhouette was brought forward last autumn, but not stressed. Now the flounces of 1880 are having a reincarnation in this season's dresses.

Skirts of 1923 may be flounced anywhere between the waistline and the hem. Flounces appear in unexpected places, such as on the front of the skirt only, directly over the hips at either side. Skirts may be flounced all round in straight lines, or wide frills may slant low on one hip and high on the other.

Every dressmaker now has his or her own version of the ruffle. A white crepe de chine frock has flounces in front which begin midway between the hips and the knees. Narrow lace and tucks trim the pockets, the collar and the cuffs of this frock.

Three silhouettes in evening gowns thus far are sanctioned. The 1880 silhouette, with bustle or bustle effect of large crisp sash bows. The skirt is draped at the back of the bustle, which is sometimes held out by wire framework. The Venetian or 1890 silhouette of hourglass shape, which lends various interpretations many delightfully modern. The slender silhouette, which is the most general, and is varied ad infinitum.

New Sleeve Feature of Afternoon Gown

The material in this interesting outfit, the feature of which is the new sleeve, is a flat crepe of sand color, so very popular this season—printed in blue, and the banding is of blue to match the printed pattern.

Beautiful Hemline

Very narrow points, giving almost the appearance of fringe, edged with pearls make an effective hem trimming on a frock of pale blue georgette.

Colored Net in Vogue.

Colored net is having a great vogue for curtains. Orange makes a dark room cheerful, while blue will subdue a room that seems to be glaring.

Ask any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a high concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and furthermore if this wonderful discovery does not produce the results anticipated you can have the price refunded.

It is not wise to expect to allow swollen veins to keep on enlarging. Often they burst and cause weeks of pain, suffering and loss of employment. Start the Emerald Oil treatment as directed, advise and improvement will begin at once. Your druggist can supply you.—Advertisement

Arthur Devlin, former star of the New York Giants who is now a Boston National scout and outfield coach.

GOOD SWIMMER WILL LEARN WHLE YOUNG

Easy to Gain Confidence of Those Between 9 and 13, Says Coach Tom Robinson.

"If you would be a good swimmer, learn to swim while young, is the advice of Coach Tom Robinson of Northwestern university is handing out to would-be record breakers Robinson says that those who learn most quickly are those from nine to thirteen years of age He has taught children as young as three and old women of sixty-five years

"It is very easy to gain the confidence of those between nine and thirteen," remarked the Purple coach "and when I tell them to follow certain methods they attempt to do so without any hesitation But from fourteen on the child allows his own sentiments and beliefs to enter into the experiment and at times likes to do research work in the field himself. It takes from one to six lessons to teach the average child of ten to swim.

"I have had a great deal of experience in teaching little tots of three to navigate. They are always afraid of the water, so the only thing necessary is to win their confidence. Usually the mothers are on the scene and the first shock they get is when they hear the little ones call me Tom It hardly ever takes more than ten lessons for them to become accustomed to the water and to paddle around without any assistance

"The hardest age to coach is one between twenty and thirty five, but after a man or woman reaches the stage of second childhood he or she is as meek and pliable as the child of ten I had no difficulty in teaching one woman of sixty-five the rudiments of the art She could swim gracefully after two lessons."

Retired Beaver Falls Man A Dreco Enthusiast

Constipation and Stomach Troubles Disappear After Taking Dreco

After living an energetic life as a blacksmith, where muscle and good health are necessary requisites to work, David S. Neely retired to enjoy the fruits of his labor. But stomach trouble and constipation threatened to take all the joy out of living for him. After he ate gas would form in his stomach, distressing him. And it seemed that his system was constantly poisoned by constipation.

Having read about the thousands of people who have benefited by Dreco he decided to give it a try.

"Constipation and stomach trouble kept me in constant agony," says Mr. Neely.

"I couldn't enjoy eating. Had no appetite for food, and my system began to feel the effects of poison.

"But Dreco seems to have conquered my trouble. Although I have only taken one bottle so far the progress made in my condition makes me confident that Dreco is the one medicine that will give me permanent good health."

Dreco is the pure liquid extract of many roots, herbs, barks, and leaves, which act on the vital organs of the human body. After taking Dreco it is noticed that the stomach is soothed and the gassy condition eliminated, the liver becomes active, relieving headaches and dull, tired out feeling; nerves are quieted which induces sound sleep, the kidneys are strengthened, appetite increased, bowels act with ease and regularity and the whole system takes on renewed energy, vigor and vitality. Dreco is harmless, pleasant to take and the effects are quickly felt.

Dreco is being specially introduced by the Connellsville Drug Co. Call on them and they will gladly tell you of the merits of this wonderful remedy.

Drop of 50 Cents a Ton In Price for Spot or Prompt Furnace and Foundry Coke

Is Caused More by Heavy Contract Deliveries Than by Overproduction.

IS NO ABSORBING POWER

In the Market as Furnaces Have No Need to Augment Regular Supply; Foundry Conditions Different But Demand Has Decreased; Iron Quiet.

Special to The Weekly Courier.

PITTSBURG, May 16.—The decline in prices of coke for spot or prompt shipment has continued during the past week, the market falling about 50 cents a ton more.

A week ago there was a sale of 1,000 tons of standard grade furnace coke at $5.50. Today a similar purchase could be made at $5.00 or $5.25, with the probability that the lower figure could be done. Of small lots of good grade coke there are various offerings at $5.00.

In foundry coke there has been a corresponding decline, the general range of the market now, for spot or prompt shipment, being $6.00 to $6.50, or 50 cents lower than the range given a week ago.

Theoretically the declining market is of course ascribed to "overproduction" but as a matter of fact there is little if any excess production. As markets are made, the outstanding future of the coke situation is simply that deliveries on contracts are heavy and fully equal to the requirements of the blast furnaces, whereby it is exceptional for any furnace to come into the spot market for any coke. As there is always a little floating supply and as the market has scarcely any absorbing power, prices naturally decline.

Thus far there has been little resistance to the declining tendency in the market, but definite and substantial resistance is certain to be encountered now or in the very near future by the cost line being reached. Most operators insist that at $5.00 for furnace coke the cost line has already been reached. The explanation is offered that some operators would rather make a little coke at a loss than curtail production further because workmen might be lost and it is important to hold working forces together.

In foundry coke the general condition as to the character of business done is different from that obtaining in furnace coke. In furnace coke the current consumption is covered by contracts, made for the present quarter; in foundry coke the current consumption is not covered by contracts, except in a few cases. The great bulk of the foundry coke consumption has to be covered by current purchases from time to time, and thus there is an open trading market right along. In some quarters it is said that the offerings of foundry coke in the market have been increasing, but this is not well established. The buying demand is certainly decreased, but whether this is due to a decrease in consumption or merely to buyers following a more conservative course, and buying now in more hand to mouth fashion than formerly is not so certain. The blast furnaces making foundry iron assert that activity among the foundries is not diminished, that the foundries are taking pig iron deliveries as well as at any time.

As to third quarter contracts for furnace coke, there is a great deal of talk among coke operators and very little among blast furnace men. The operators do not conceal the fact that they would like to close contracts at this time, while the furnacemen seem quite content to wait.

There is one new development in contract coke, the making of a third quarter contract, involving a round tonnage, at $6.00. This was done within the past week, and the price is 50 cents under the last previous contract. The new contract furnishes basis for quoting the market, but operators hold that their asking price should also be considered. The difficulty is in determining just what the real asking price is. Some are talking $7.00, just as a few weeks ago they were talking $7.50 or even $8.00, while others are talking $6.50. Furnacemen who do not want to close at yet state they would be afraid to bid $6.00. Perhaps $6.50 is the highest asking price that is being seriously considered. The market as a whole seems quotable as follows:

Spot furnace	$5.00@$5.25
Contract furnace	$6.00@$6.50
Spot foundry	$6.00@$6.50

The pig iron market is as stagnant as ever, but it has developed some news in the past week nevertheless, as Bessemer iron is quotable $1 lower than formerly and basic iron $2 lower. The decline in Bessemer occured through the making of small lot sales at $30, Valley. Quite possibly an inquiry for a good sized lot would develop a lower price still. In basic iron the quotable decline does not even rest upon actual purchases, being represented by a reduction of $2 in the asking price of a large merchant producer. The new asking price is $29, Valley, but there is no inquiry and there is no definite indication that any consumer would pay as much as that if in actual need of iron.

In foundry iron the furnaces maintain their former position, of regarding the market as $31, Valley. Small sales have been made at this figure for some time past, but in the past week even the small lot business has diminished. The $31, Valley, price, was reached on all grades just after the middle of March, and while the market has been growing weaker for more than a month it is only in the past week that any lower prices have been definitely quotable. The market now awaits the development of some demand of consequence, which will determine where prices must be in order to establish a regular trading basis. The market is now quotable as follows, the quotations being largely nominal and subject to possible shading if attractive orders are offered:

Bessemer	$30.00
Basic	$29.00
Foundry	$31.00
Malleable	$31.00

These prices are f. o. b. Valley furnaces, freight to Pittsburg being $1.77.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

External treatments seldom cure piles.

Nor do surgical operations

The cause is inside—bad circulation

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription Hem-Roid, and tried it in 4,000 cases before he was satisfied. Now Hem-Roid is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Connellsville Drug Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.—Advertisement

Out Goes All Rheumatic Poison

Rheuma Acts on Kidneys, Liver and Bladder the Very First Day.

Get a bottle of Rheuma today and wear a satisfied smile on your face tomorrow.

It's a remedy that is astonishing the whole country, and it's just as good for gout, sciatica, lumbago and kidney misery as for rheumatism.

It drives the poisonous waste from the joints and muscles—that's the secret of Rheuma's success.

But we don't ask you to take our word for it, go to Connellsville Drug Co., or any good druggist and get a bottle, and if it doesn't do as we promise get your money back. It will be there waiting for you.—Advertisement.

PRINT THIS ABOUT Joint-Ease Says Druggist

"Joint-Ease is selling like hot cakes in my store because it is a wonderful and speedy remedy for all joint troubles.

"But why not impress on tens of thousands of suffering people some of the things that dozens of my customers tell me almost daily.

Some say that it knocks out lumbago over night—Others assert that for chest colds and sore throat it has no equal, while many insist that there is nothing they ever tried that is so efficient for neuralgia, neuritis and even head colds and nasal catarrh."

Answering the above letter we, the makers of Joint-Ease know that what this thriving New Jersey druggist says is true, but we still maintain that Joint-Ease is prepared for stiff inflamed, painful, swollen joints whether in ankle, knee, hip elbow, shoulder fingers or spine.

You'll like to use painless Joint-Ease, for with just one minute's rubbing it soaks in through the flesh direct to the ailing bones and ligaments—that's why it succeeds — for when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—And without any waste of time all swelling and congestion disappears. 6.—All

Majesty surmounted the last few steps and, snorting halted beside Stewart's black To Madeline the scene was as if the world had changed The ridge was a mountain top It dropped before her into a black, stone ridged shrub patched, many canyoned gulf Massed inky clouds were piling across the peaks, obscuring the highest ones A fork of white lightning flashed and like the booming of an avalanche thunder followed

Madeline glanced at Stewart He had forgotten her presence Immovable as stone he sat his horse, dark faced dark-eyed and like an Indian unconscious of thought he watched and watched To see him thus, to divine the strange affinity between the soul of this man become primitive and the savage environment that had developed him, were powerful helps to Madeline Hammond in her strange desire to understand his nature

A cracking of iron shod hoofs behind her broke the spell Monty had reached the summit

"Gene what it won't all be doin' in a minnit Moses hisself couldn't tell observed Monty

Then Dorothy climbed to his side and looked

"Oh isn't it just perfectly lovely!" she exclaimed "But I wish it wouldn't storm We'll all get wet

Once more Stewart faced the ascent, keeping to the slow heave of the ridge as it rose southward toward the looming spires of rock Soon he was off smooth ground, and Madeline, some rods behind him looked back with concern at her friends Here the real toil the real climb began and a mountain storm was about to burst in all its fury

The sky grew blacker the slow gathering clouds appeared to be suddenly agitated, they piled and rolled and mushroomed and obscured the crags The air moved heavily and seemed to be laden with sulphurous smoke and sharp lightning flashes began to play A distant roar of wind could be heard between the peals of thunder

Stewart waited for Madeline under the lee of a shelving cliff where the cowboys had halted the pack train Majesty was sensitive to the flashes of lightning Madeline patted his neck and softly called to him The weary burros nodded the Mexican women covered their heads with their mantles Stewart untied the slicker at the back of Madeline's saddle and helped her on with it Then he put on his own The other cowboys followed suit Presently Madeline saw Monty and Dorothy rounding the cliff and hoped the others would come soon

A blue white, knotted rope of lightning burned down out of the clouds and instantly a thunder clap crashed seeming to shake the foundations of the earth This moment of the breaking of the storm with the strange growing roar of wind like a moaning monster was pregnant with a heart disturbing emotion for Madeline Hammond Glorious it was to be free healthy out in the open under the shadow of the mountain and cloud, in the teeth of the wind and rain and storm

Suddenly as the ground quaked under her horse's feet and all the sky grew black and crisscrossed by flaming streaks and between thunderous reports there was a strange hollow roar sweeping down upon her she realized how small was her knowledge and experience of the mighty forces of nature

With blacker gloom and deafening roar came the torrent of rain It was a cloud burst It was like solid water tumbling down For long Madeline sat her horse head bent to the pelting rain When its force lessened and she heard Stewart call for all to follow she looked up to see that he was starting on once more She turned her horse into his trail

Rain fell steadily The fury of the storm, however had passed and the roll of thunder diminished in volume The air had wonderfully cleared and was growing cool Madeline began to feel uncomfortably cold and wet Stewart was climbing faster than formerly, and she noted that Monty kept at her heels pressing her on Time had been lost and the camp site was a long way off The stag hounds began to lag and get footsore The sharp rocks of the trail were cruel to their feet Then as Madeline began to tire, she noticed less and less around her Her horse climbed and climbed and brush and sharp corners of stone everlastingly pulled and tore at her wet garments A gray gloom settled down around her Night was approaching

Stewart's horse was on a log-trot now and Madeline left the trail more to Majesty than to her own choosing

As black night began to envelop her surroundings she marked that the fir trees had given place to pine forest Suddenly a pin point of light pierced the ebony blackness It grew larger Black tree trunks crossed her line of vision The light was a fire She heard a cowboy song and the wild chorus of a pack of coyotes Stewart's tall figure, with sombrero slouched down was now and then outlined against a growing circle of light And by the aid of that light she saw him turn every moment or so to look back probably to assure himself that she was close behind

With a prospect of fire and warmth and food and rest Madeline's enthusiasm revived What a climb There was promise in this wild ride and lonely trail and hidden craggy height not only in the adventure her friends longed for but in some nameless joy and spirit for her

CHAPTER XV

The Crags

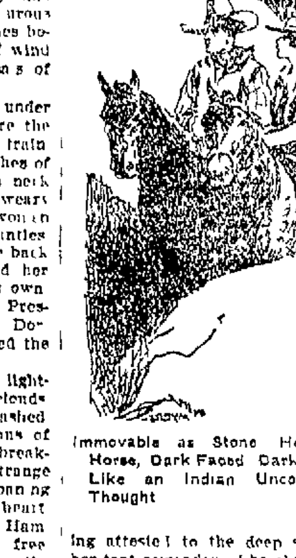
Glad indeed was Madeline to be lifted off her horse beside a roaring fire—to see steaming pots upon red hot coals Except about her shoulders which had been protected by the slicker she was wringing wet The Mexican women came quickly to help her change in a tent nearby but Madeline preferred for the moment to warm her numb feet and hands and to wait the spectacle of her arriving friends

"Warm clothes—hot drinks and grub—warm blankets" rang out Stewart's sharp order

Then with Florence helping the Mexican women it was not long until Madeline and [illegible] of the party were comfortable except for the weariness and aches that only rest and sleep could alleviate

Neither fatigue nor pains however nor the strangeness of being packed sardinelike under canvas nor the howls of coyotes kept Madeline's guests from stretching out with long grateful sighs and one by one dropping into deep slumber Madeline whispered a little to Florence and laughed with her once or twice, and then the light flickering on the canvas faded and her eyelids closed Darkness and roar of camp fire low voices of men thump of horses hoofs coyote serenade the sense of warmth and sweet rest—all drifted away

When she awakened shadows of swaying branches moved on the sunlit canvas above her Slow regular [illegible]



Immovable as Stone He Sat His Horse, Dark Faced Dark Eyed and, Like an Indian Unconscious of Thought

ing attested to the deep slumbers of her tent comrades She observed presently that Florence was missing from the number Madeline rose and peeped out between the flaps

An exquisitely beautiful scene surprised and enthralled her gaze Eager to get out where she could enjoy an unrestricted view she searched for her pack found it in a corner and then hurriedly and quietly dressed

Her favorite stag hounds Russ and Tartar were asleep before the door where they had been chained She awakened them and loosened them thinking the while that it must have been Stewart who had chained them near her Close at hand also was a cowboy's bed rolled up in a tarpaulin

The cool air, fragrant with pine and spruce and some subtle nameless tang sweet and tonic made Madeline stand erect and breathe slowly and deeply It was like drinking of a magic draught She felt it in her blood that it quickened its flow Turning to look in the other direction beyond the tent she saw the remnants of last night's temporary camp and farther on a grove of beautiful pines from which came the sharp ring of the ax [illegible] gaze took in a wonderful park not only surrounded by lofty crags but full of crags of lesser height lifting their heads from dark green groves of trees The rising sun, not yet above the eastern elevations, sent its rosy and golden shafts in between the towering rocks to tip the pines

Madeline with the hounds beside her walked through the nearest grove The ground was soft and springy and brown with pine needles

Florence [illegible] under the trees and came running She was like a young girl with life and color and joy She wore a flannel blouse corduroy skirt and moccasins And her hair was fastened under a band like an Indian's

"Castleton's gone with a gun hours it seems said Florence Gene just went to hunt him up The other gentlemen are still asleep I imagine they sure will sleep up here in this air"

Then business like, Florence fell to questioning Madeline about details of camp arrangement which Stewart and Florence herself could hardly see to without suggestion

As the day advanced the charm of the place grew upon Madeline Even at noon with the sun beating down there was comfortable warmth rather than heat It was the kind of warmth that Madeline liked to feel in the spring

Presently a chorus of merry calls attracted her attention and she turned to see Helen limping along with Dorothy and Mrs Beck and Edith supporting each other They were all rested but lame and delighted with the place and as hungry as bears awakened from a winter's sleep

Then they had dinner sitting on the ground after the manner of Indians and it was a dinner that lacked merriment only because everybody was too busily appeasing appetite

For a few days the prevailing features of camp life for Madeline's guests were sleep and rest The men were more visibly affected by the mountain air than the women

This languorous spell disappeared presently and then the days were full of life and action Necessarily of course Madeline and her guests were now thrown much in company with the cowboys And the party grew to be like one big family

Madeline found the situation one of stern and double interest for her If before she had cared to study her cowboys particularly Stewart now with the contrasts afforded by her guests she felt by turns she was amused and mystified and perplexed and saddened and then again subtly pleased

From the thought of Stewart, and the watchfulness growing out of it she discovered more about him He was not happy he often paced up and down the grove at night he absented himself from camp sometimes during the afternoon when Nels and Nick and Monty were there he was always watching the trails as if he expected to see some one come riding up He alone of the cowboys did not indulge in the fun and talk around the camp fire He remained preoccupied and sad and was always looking away into distance Madeline had a strange sense of his guardianship over her and remembered Don Carlos she imagined he worried a good deal over his charge and indeed, over the safety of all the party

A favorite lounging spot of Madeline's was a shaded niche under the lee of crags facing the east Here in the shade of afternoon she and Edith would often lounge under a low-branched tree Seldom they talked much for it was afternoon and dreamy with the strange spell of this mountain fastness There was smoky haze in the valleys a fleecy cloud resting over the peaks a sailing eagle in the blue sky silence that was the unbroken silence of the wild heights and a soft wind laden with incense of pine

One afternoon however Edith appeared prone to talk seriously

"See here Majesty Hammond do you intend to spend the rest of your life in this wilderness?" she asked bluntly

See Here Majesty Hammond Do You Intend to Spend the Rest of Your Life in This Wilderness?"

Madeline was silent

"Oh, it is glorious! Don't misunderstand me, dear, went on Edith earnestly, as she laid her hand on Madeline's This trip has been a revelation to me I did not tell you, Majesty, that I was ill when I arrived Now I'm well So well! Look at Helen too Why, she was a ghost when we got here Now she is brown and strong and beautiful If it were for nothing else than this wonderful gift of health I would love the West But I have come to love it for other things—even spiritual things Majesty I have been studying you I see and feel what his life has made of you When I came I wondered at your strength your tranquility your serenity your happiness And I was stunned I wondered at the causes of your change Now I know You were sick of idleness sick of uselessness if not of society—sick of the horrible noises and smells and contacts one can no longer escape in the cities I am sick of all that too and I could tell you many women of our kind who suffer in a like manner You have done what many of us want to do but have not the courage You have left it I am not blind to the splendid difference you have made in your life I think I would have discovered even if your brother had not told me what good you have done to the Mexicans and cattlemen of your range It is you have work to do That is much the secret of your happiness is it not? Tell me Tell me something of what it means to you?"
